1861 Photographic War History. 1865

248. Trossel's House, Gettysburg, July 4, 1863.

The 9th Massachusetts battery of light artillery were stationed in the yard and barnyard at Trossel's place. Some idea of the awful tide of battle which they met there can be inferred from the fact that of the 88 horses of their battery, 65 were killed. This view shows where one of their guns stood. This battery did most valiant service here that day. They held the fearful charge in check until our lines could be re-formed to successfully meet and repel the attack.

1861—PHOTOGRAPHIC HISTORY.—1865

This series of pictures are ORIGINAL PHOTOGRAPHS taken during the war of the Rebellion. More than a quarter of a century has passed away since the sun painted these real scenes of that great war, and the "negatives" (made by the old "wet plate" process) have undergone chemical changes which renders it slow and difficult work to get "prints" from them. Of course no more "negatives" can be made, as the scenes represented by this series of war views have passed away forever. The great value of these pictures is apparent. Some "negatives" are entirely past printing from, and all of them are very slow printers.

A WORD AS TO PRICES.

A gentleman living near Watkin's Glen, New York, wrote us that he thought 30 cents each, too high a price for the stereoscopic war views, as he could buy views of Watkin's Glen for $1.50 per dozen. We wrote him to this effect:

"If there was but one negative of Watkin's Glen in existence, and if Watkin's Glen itself were entirely wiped off the face of the earth, and if this one negative was old and 'dense' and very slow to 'print,' and if all the people of this country were as much interested in a view of Watkin's Glen as they are in seeing the real scenes of our great war, so faithfully reproduced, THEN, and ONLY UNDER SUCH CIRCUMSTANCES, should Watkin's Glen Pictures be compared to photographs taken 'at the front' during the days of 1861 to 1865."

The gentleman "acknowledged the corn," took the war views he wished for, paid the reasonable price asked for them, and was satisfied.

The above is the only answer we shall ever make to the question of PRICE. We deem it necessary to say this much, as many persons write and ask us for CHEAP war views; when we change the price of these war views, it will be to double it; they will never be any cheaper than now. They can be obtained only of the undersigned or our duly authorized agents.
